Professional help for photo contest organizers

Since 2007 FotoKlikk has been providing the organizers of all the major photo contests in Hungary with a web-based submission surface and judging system, suitable for evaluating thousands of photographs online. With the experience of having taken part in organizing 25 photo contests we can offer a unique and versatile system, easily adaptable to the needs of different users. We can also help in creating and running a communication site in case the contest organizers require.

Our photo contest submission and judging pages are easy to use for contestants and jury members alike, and tailor-made to the needs of the contest organizers, showing exactly those features they want to present. (See for example: Hungarian Press Photographers' Contest site, the Wedding Photography Competition site.)

Our user friendly online photo contest site consists of:

- Presentation of the contest
- Contest rules, terms and conditions
- FAQ
- Forum
- Contact
- Submission page (only for contestants)
- Judging page (only for jury members and organizers)

The use of the simple and effective photo contest page:

- Having registered, contestants get their personal page for uploading their photos easily. It is possible to limit the number of photos one person can enter into one category or set a total limit to the photos uploaded. If the photo is bigger than the required size, it is resized by the system.
- Each photo can have a title and a description.
- It is possible to locate the photos or the contestants geographically.

- Contestants can modify the uploaded photos till the end of the submission period.
- Contestants can ask questions in an open Forum or privately in e-mail.
- It is possible to manage the payment of registration fee on this page. After paying their fee, contestants get an e-mail about their status-change.
- The first round of judging is done on this page, the jury members may start their work before the submission period ends with the already complete applications.
- The jury members get an invitation, and once they are registered to the system they can start evaluating the photos from anywhere on earth, provided they have internet access.
- The jury members may start their work with any chosen photo, then they get subsequent ones randomly. Voting is done either by yes/no button or numbers. Jury members have to click only once for each photo, then they get the next one.
- The four most efficient judging methods we suggest are: 1) evaluation by points 0-5, 2) evaluation by points 0-9, 3) voting yes/no or 4) yes-no-maybe
- Contestants can upload series of photos as well, in that case the series are judged as one piece of art.

- The jury members can not see their fellow jury member's activities, nonetheless their votes.
- During judging jury members can see the photos in different sizes.
- At the end of the given judging round a statistics is made about the number of yes and no votes or the points, and the jury decides about the minimum points necessary for getting into the next round.
- The whole system is invisible for outsiders.

- It is possible for a different selection panel to evaluate the same set of photos (it can be useful if not the same person organizes the exhibition and edits the catalogue or album).
- The system is designed for asking for and accepting the high resolution photos of chosen finalists.
- It is possible to ask finalists to submit their high resolution portrait and professional CV, useful for publications.
- On demand the judging process can be turned into a personal event, with jury members meeting at the same venue. We can broadcast the whole judging process to the online audience in perfect quality.
